

Problem Statement: There's no central place to find or talk about events run by students rather than the school.

Who?: Students on college campuses

What?: Students have trouble getting information and staying connected about student-led events

Where?: On campuses or in cities

Why?: This matters because these events can provide opportunities for students to make new friends, have new experiences and find new interests.